to showcase experimental jewellery by Swiss luxury design firm Atelier XJC that references feathers, scales and large delicate ruffs.

Slideshow: Paris photographers Milo Keller & Julien Gallico shot this series of photos

Benetton.

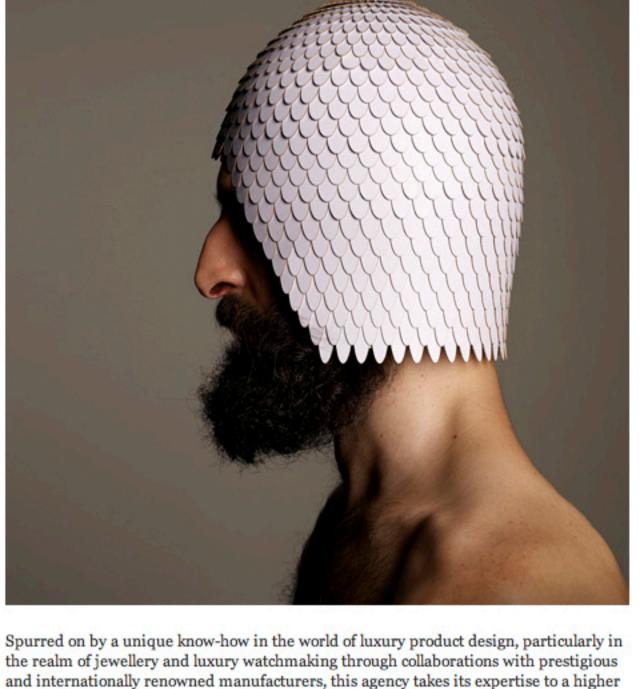

"Whoever wishes to do great things must think profoundly of the details," said the poet and writer Paul Valéry. It's a maxim to which Atelier XJC can readily lay claim, having embodied this precept for exactly ten years.

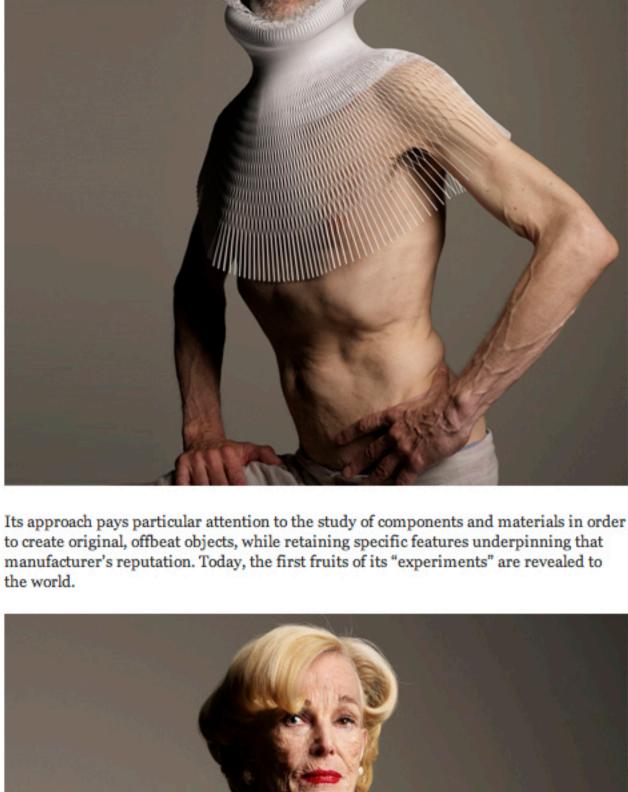

Here's a description of the project from Atelier XJC:

level with the launch of a genuine laboratory of ideas within its own four walls.

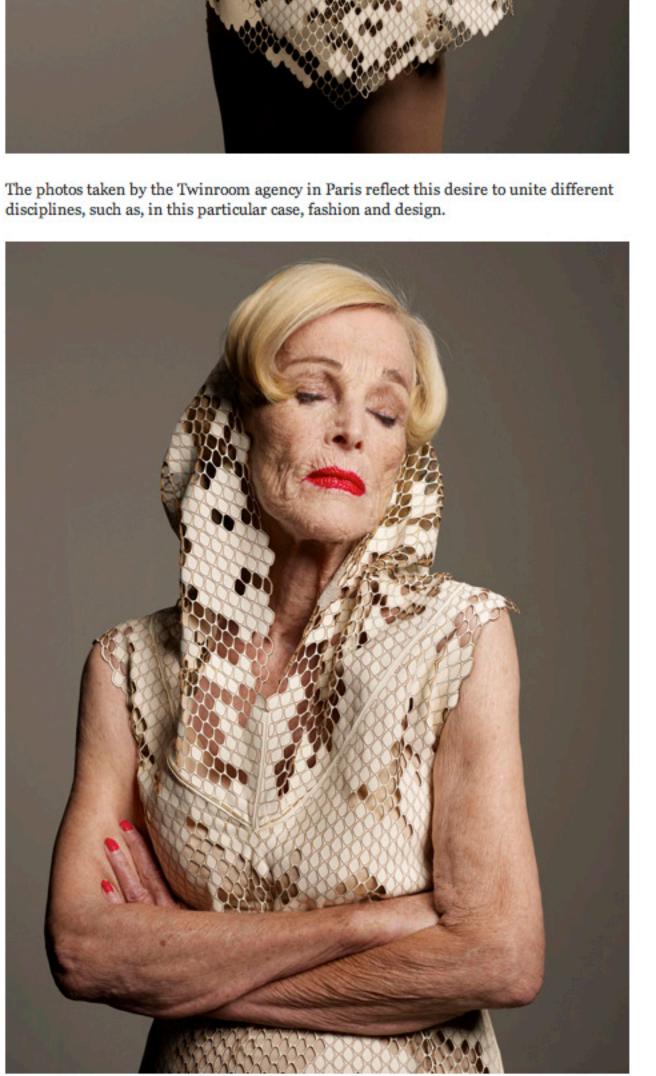

This first wave of creations under the Atelier XJC banner heralds a new decade dedicated to jewellery and luxury watchmaking, to be enriched also by other more experimental fields.
